

Contributors

Yonjae Jung is Professor of English at Konkuk University. His scholarly work has been mainly in 19th-century American Literature and in Literary Theory. His current project is on the relationship between newspaper journalism and the nineteenth-century American literature in antebellum literary marketplace. His articles on diverse critical issues have appeared in Explicator, Foreign Literature Studies, American Studies International, and LIT: Literature Interpretation Theory.

Ulf Kirchdorfer is Professor of English at Darton State College. He received his Ph.D. from Texas Christian University (TCU) and was selected a Carnegie Foundation U.S. Professor of the Year. His work on William Faulkner has appeared (or is shortly forthcoming) in the Faulkner Journal, Eureka Studies in Short Fiction, Explicator, Teaching Faulkner, and Arkansas Review. His poetry has been published by Harvard Review, Connecticut Review, and Poetry Daily. He is also co-editor of The Great American Wise Ass Poetry Anthology, to be published by Lamar University Press.

Michael Modarelli works as an assistant professor in the Division of Languages & Letters at Walsh University in North Canton, Ohio. He also serves as Director of the First Year Experience. Modarelli earned his Ph.D degree from the University of Tennessee in 2011. His scholarly articles have appeared such publications as Modern Language Quarterly, English Studies, and Cahiers Elisabethains.

Tanfer Emin Tunc is an Associate Professor in the Department of American Culture and Literature at Hacettepe University, Ankara, Turkey. She holds a PhD in US History from the State University of New York at Stony Brook, and specializes in Women's Studies and American Cultural Studies, with an emphasis on gender, sexuality, race, and the American South. She has published extensively on southern writers such as Caroline Gordon, Tennessee Williams, and Margaret Mitchell, as well as on topics ranging from reproduction in the antebellum South, to southern foodways and Southern Gothic literature. She is Vice President of the American Studies Association of Turkey (ASAT) and a Board Member of the European Association for American Studies (EAAS).